President's Message

FROM THE PRESIDENT . . .

Nominating Committee

It's a happy day here in Mudville in one respect, and sad in another (which I'll touch on in the next item). I've received word that nominating committee chairman Gene Trinks has finalized the search for candidates for officers for next year. The biographies of the new candidates will be published in the May issue of Coil Line.

Gene has tendered his resignation as the chairman of the nominating committee in order to be able to run for President. Gene was one of the founders of PNC³ and has served as President and held various other PNC³ offices and committee positions. I have appointed Frank Covey to replace Gene and finish up the election process.

March Coil Line

At the beginning of February, the hard drive on my desktop computer crashed. Unfortunately this happened just as we were finalizing the March Coil Line, and four days before I was to leave on a cruise. I started to make contingency plans, just in case I could not get everything done in time. Fortunately, I had the necessary programs on my laptop and was able to convert everything to grayscale and get it to the printer (probably the earliest that it has ever been sent). I was also able to colorize the raw copy and post it to the web site before I left on my trip.

PNC³ Web Site

The crash of my hard drive also had an effect on the web site. I did have the web site files backed up on my computer, but I lost the program that runs, edits and updates the web site. When I got my computer back after the cruise, I had to re-install the programs that I had been using.

When I searched the web server after re-installing everything, I found that there were considerable data missing – and the latest data were from February of 2009. I'm not sure if it was something that I did or another cause, but the missing data were simply no longer on the server.

I sent an email to John Cropper, who has been our communications director for quite a while, and who hosts the club server. Unfortunately, John informed me that he had not backed up the web site server since early last year.

I have not yet checked to see what data might be lost except for the news items on the home page, but I'll get to that soon. Hopefully, there is not a great loss of data, since there were only a few coils issued last year (and those will be easy to reconstruct).

PNC³ and Coil Line acknowledge postage donations of over $53 from member Joan Porter, and over $76 from member Peter Tukker.

PNC³ always welcomes your mint postage, even of presort coils. Send donations to The Incredible Mailing Co. Their street address has now been added to the second page of every issue for the benefit of those who receive the electronic edition of Coil Line.

Is 37¢ Flag Coil (Scott 3632C) Really Known "Untagged"?

At press time, the Scott editors informed me they found two "pinpoint" specks of taggant on the 37¢ Flag coil reported in the March issue we sent to them to examine. This means either the first example (reported in February), a third case (see page 55) or some new candidate needs to be found "totally" untagged before the catalog will list an "untagged" error.

Upcoming regional meetings ...

(no announcements received yet...)

APS StampShow 2010 PNC³ Meeting Report

The PNC³ Regional Meeting in Riverside, CA was well attended on Saturday, February 20 by eighteen members and guests. John Himes chaired the meeting this year.

In a discussion of recent plate number coil finds, attendees bemoaned the lack of any new numbers to uncover, besides the (10¢) Banner presort coil #V333. Of note was the revelation that no one in attendance had seen any of the new V333s since December 2009's Coil Line reported the initial discovery on a reader's incoming household mail.

Discussion also ensued over the light phosphor tagging on the (25¢) Eagle presort coil that was first found in 2008, with mint coils turning up in 2009.

Some attendees educated the group with remarks on how to distinguish between the Peak/Valley versus the Valley/Peak die-cut configurations of Sennett-supplied self-adhesive coil stamps. Later discussion also addressed the odd die cutting shifts on the recent Avery-supplied coils. Several members then shared their experiences with using naphtha to remove self-adhesive stamps from mailpiece paper. Although several variations of the method were reported, all agreed that naphtha is indeed a sure-fire method for removing the gum from most self-adhesives.

Generous door prizes provided by Dave Cobb of Newport Harbor Stamps, the PNC³, and John Himes were given away. So many prizes were contributed that some attendees received more than one. The meeting closed out with a robust round of trading among members.

Readers' Forum

USPS 4-state barcode affixed to Coil Line along top

We've all lamented the dearth of stamp use on mail these days. Even bulk mailers are moving away from using real stamps on their items. For this reason, I have been thankful that Coil Line offers a first class mailing option. The extra expense is definitely worth it for me to get postally used stamps of all kinds.

Unfortunately, the USPS routinely pastes scan strips over the top of the stamps used for mailing Coil Line. Going back to July 2009, I could not find a single Coil Line cover on which at least two stamps were not ruined by these strips. Two examples are attached. (The first example is shown above; the second one is shown at right.) The second example was especially tragic, as it ruined a plate block.

An easy fix would be for our mailer to place the stamps at least one inch from the edge of the mailing cover. The stamps would have to be placed one inch from both the top and the right edge, as the USPS seems to alternate between these two positions (as shown in these two examples). Then fewer stamps would be ruined by these strips, and those of us who pay for the extra expense will have more stamps to add to our collections or to use for trading.

Thank you. —Lynnette Wood #195

Editor's Message

FROM THE EDITOR . . .

I mentioned last month that the USPS domestic mail rates were not being changed this year, but didn't have the additional space in that issue to comment much further. This is the first year since 2006 without an annual raise in the first-class and standard (bulk) rates. The USPS can choose to raise those rates on its own each year based primarily (with some exception) on the rate of inflation. Due to the economic downturn, Postmaster General John Potter first informed large mailers last November that the USPS would hold these rates steady for 2010.

Shortly after the March Coil Line was issued, the USPS made widely publicized news about its current budget woes. Details included a projection of $238 billion in losses for the next ten years without restructuring that only the U.S. Congress can legislate, including a proposed end of Saturday mail delivery.

According to Corey Date, reporting in the March 3, 2010 Wall Street Journal, "The loss of Saturday delivery would deal a blow to the biggest postal clients, companies that mail ads to consumers.

'Almost all of direct marketing is done when it's relevant and timely. If it reaches you three days later, it's not timely,' said Linda Woolley, chief lobbyist for the Direct Marketing Association."

As recently as 2008, the three main sources of demand for new stamp rolls (in turn, the source for "new issues" in our specialty area of the hobby), had been (1) households and offices buying stamps "in quantity" (using rolls of 100 or 50), (2) direct-mail marketers (using rolls of 3000 and 10,000), and (3) the casual user at post offices buying one stamp at a time from a coil machine (holding water-activated rolls of 3000).

In 2009, the USPS substantially completed its announced removal of vending machines from many post offices, because of their relatively high maintenance costs compared to their usage levels. So, even though a 44c Star Flag coil was issued in a water-activated-gum roll of 3000, this format's use is now much, much lower than its predecessors.

While sales of ordinary self-adhesive coil rolls of 100 (or 50, in the case of the large-size Flags of Our Nation series) are still sizeable, there can be no doubt that this format is also on the decline. Not only does current frugality dictate buying fewer stamps at one time, (please see page 58)

The prices shown on the PNC³ Publications Catalog Order Form included with this issue of Coil Line are “pre-publication” sales prices. These pricing amounts usually are based on an estimated initial print run of 100 units, and are applicable for new chapters and new editions of previously published items.

This pricing methodology is especially applicable for items in color. It costs a great deal more to have a print run of an item in color where the print quantity is only ten or 25. This is why a “post-publication” price often will be about $3.00 per unit more than a “pre-publication” sales price. There is no guarantee, however, that a post-publication printing will take place, especially for an item such as the 2009 New Issues (in color). On the other hand, for items of which there are from time to time new editions, a previously returned order can be re-submitted for the new edition (which could be produced 12-24 months later).

Summary: Place your order soon so that you are likely to have your order filled completely. (A copy is provided on the inside of the outer mailing wrapper.) For any questions, please contact: Andy Jakes pnctreasurer@aol.com or write the editor, Ron Blanks.

3rd “Untagged” 37¢ Flag Coil: First PNC Reported

by Ron Blanks

Shortly after the March 2010 Coil Line was prepared for the printer, PNC³ member Robert Thompson sent the picture shown nearby of a 37¢ Flag coil self-adhesive stamp, the kind supplied by Sennett Security Products in large rolls for use by affixer machines (year-date 2004, Scott #3632C).

Robert had reported to me earlier that this stamp was an “unused untagged” example, so I was expecting to see a picture of this coil on a piece of liner paper larger than the stamp on all four sides. Instead, he sent this picture and remarked that it appeared to be an uncanceled used stamp, with slight damage in the upper right corner. What was remarkable to me was the fact that it also has plate number S1111, the one number used for the issue and now known on an “untagged” example (assuming it is genuine – but there’s possible doubt: please see news on page 51).

When asked about how he came to obtain this stamp and why it wasn’t previously reported, he replied that he had obtained it on eBay “several years ago”. Because it was the sole item in the eBay auction lot and described as “untagged”, he just assumed that such an item wasn’t news.

3rd “untagged” 37¢ Flag coil, first PNC example
(note: see related news on page 51)

While not on liner paper, the stamp still might not have been used for postage. Sometimes, direct-mail marketers elect to have first-class stamps affixed to the courtesy reply envelopes they enclose in mailing appeals to higher-income names on their mailing lists.

This stamp now joins the previous two non-PNC “untagged” cases shown in the last two Coil Line issues. (We still need a reader to report finding a truly “mint” example, still on liner paper, to examine.)

“Thimble Bottom to Valley/Peak”

This is the third in a series of articles on the Dramatic Die Cut Shifts found on the 44¢ Star Flag (2009-7) and the 28¢ Polar Bear (2009-2), both from Avery Dennison. All rolls of either issue I have examined so far come with a dramatic die cut shift every 25 stamps along the roll. Sometimes these shifts occur within a plate strip of five (PS5) with a plate number, but most often they do not. The shift covered in this article is the shift from a Thimble Bottom shape of a Valley/Peak (VP) die cut, to a normally shaped VP die cut. Information in these articles will be incorporated into the revised Avery Dennison Die Cut Varieties publication offered in this issue of Coil Line. (See page 55 for more about the PNC³ publications now being offered for 2010 orders. You can use the order form on the inside of this issue’s mailing wrapper.)

Thimble Bottom Die Cut
(matching shapes on both sides)

Valley/Peak Die Cut

Used-single and cover collectors should have fun finding these dramatic die cut shifts. PNC examples, mint or used, would be especially challenging to find, due to their random coincidence of PNC plus die cut shift.

We hope to have one more article to illustrate another type of these dramatic shifts found among Avery-supplied rolls of 100 currently on sale in U.S. post offices. (Consult the chart below for the full list of shifts known so far).

Editor's reply: These long white strips first appeared in the 1990s bearing the "POSTNET" delivery-point barcoding. The USPS often affixed them to letter mail over existing barcodes to apply corrections. When the processing of "flats" (large and flat items like Coil Line) began using the new "4-state" barcodes around 2005, the equipment printed the barcode on the strips after affixing them to the flats.

Interestingly, these white strips are actually peelable. After I informed Lynette about this, she reported back that they peeled off without incident. She agreed to still have her letter shown, so that other unaware readers could learn that the strips can be carefully removed without damaging stamps. I found some envelopes about ten years old (from 2000) with these strips, and the strips also peeled off fine.

but many individuals and some offices have increasingly become accustomed to buying the "Forever" Liberty Bell stamps. These stamps, introduced in 2007, are always valid for the one-ounce letter rate and come only in booklets of 20 (or 18 in the case of the kiosk- or ATM-dispensed sheetlets).

This brings us to the large-roll coils mostly used in direct-mail appeals or advertising. While correspondence and bill payments continue to go "online", advertising mail will remain, with some using the rolls for the foreseeable future. – Ron Blanks
